Puma Exploration Begins Its First Drilling Program at Williams Brook Gold Property in New Brunswick, Canada

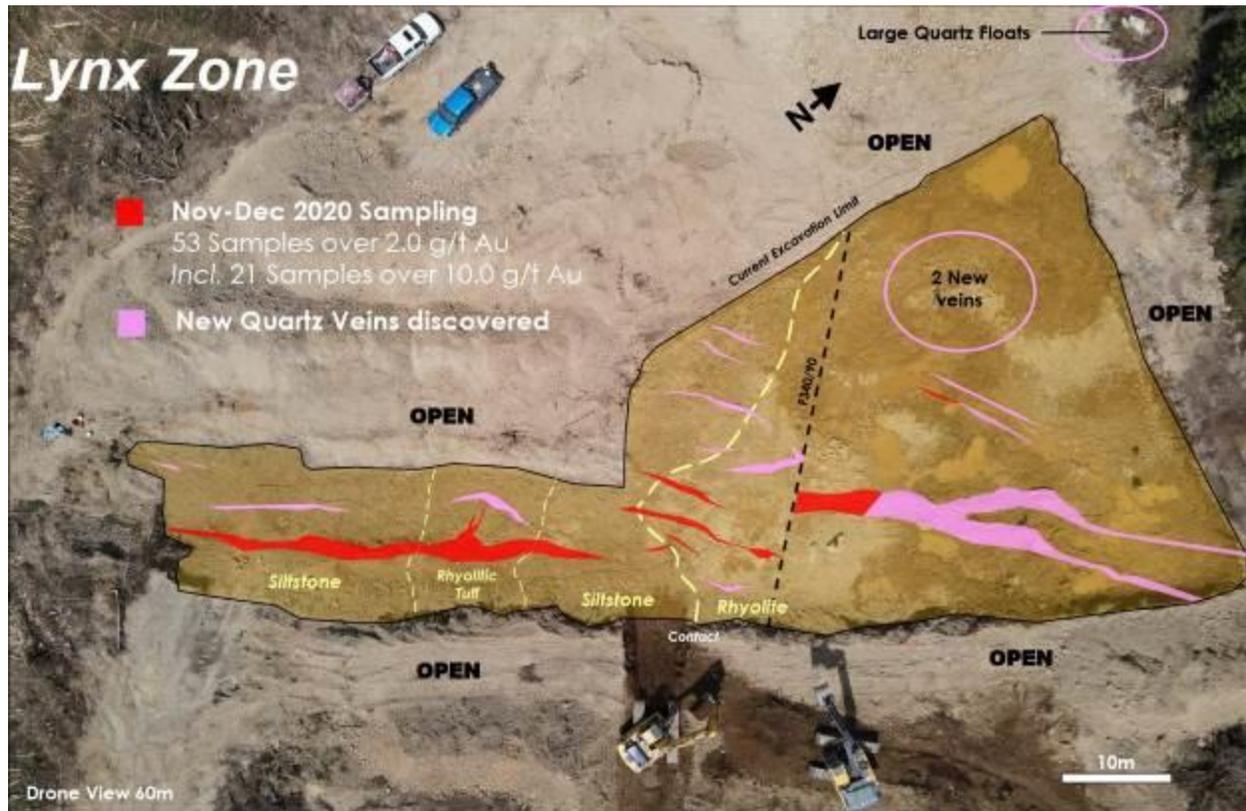

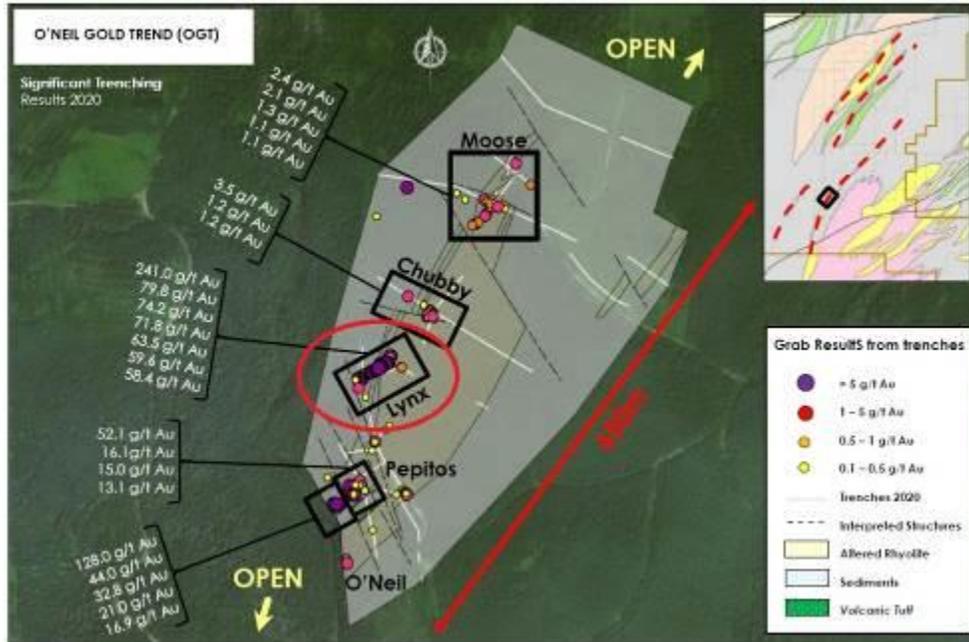

On June 30, 2021, Puma announced the commencement of its maiden drilling campaign, with an initial minimum of 2,000m planned to investigate high-grade gold targets at the O'Neil Gold Trend (OGT) on its 100% controlled Williams Brook Gold Project on the 41,500ha Triple Fault area project in central New Brunswick.

Since the discovery of the high-grade gold-bearing system at the contact of strongly altered rhyolite and sediments in late 2020, Puma has reported the discovery of additional quartz veins and veinlets at surface at the Lynx Gold Zone with few specks of visible gold (VG) observed in the quartz veins. Puma stripping has uncovered significant gold in rock samples over >70m strike length along the Lynx Gold trend. Initial drilling shall test shallow mineralization below the high-grade gold showings at the Lynx Gold Zone, where several grab samples assayed over 30 g/t Au. Puma intends to initially proceed with evenly spaced fans of short drill holes centered on the gold-bearing quartz veins network.

The Williams Brook Gold Project is located within another potential newly highly prospective district of Atlantic, Canada. These emerging gold endowed trends are interpreted to be related to a major rifting in the New Brunswick geological events and could represent a low sulfidation epithermal gold systems.
